

A solid quarter

The global equity market as represented by the MSCI AC World index oscillated in tandem with the news flow on macro data and tariffs but eventually eked out a small gain in the second quarter. The bond vigilantes are signalling slowing economic growth ahead as reflected in the US 10-year government bond yield falling precipitously from 2.4% to 2.0% during the quarter. Indeed, central bank figureheads across the world telegraphed that additional stimulus and rate cuts are on the agenda in case the economy were to slow down further.

SKAGEN Global solidly outperformed the index in Q2 and the fund ended the quarter ahead of its benchmark as measured YTD as well as over 1-year and 3-year periods.

Attribution

The fund's three strongest performers based on absolute return in Q2 were Intercontinental Exchange (ICE), Microsoft and DSV.

The quarter did not contain any significant news on the US exchange operator ICE, though we note that the stock had lagged behind the market rally in Q1. After our recent meeting with ICE management in New York, we continue to believe that the stock is materially undervalued. In our view, the share price does not yet reflect ICE's superior strategic position nor its ability to drive further innovation in the industry.

With regard to the US IT giant Microsoft, which has resided in the SKAGEN Global portfolio for nearly nine years, it is increasingly clear that the company has built a powerhouse in the structurally growing cloud-computing segment.

Finally, the asset-light Danish freight-forwarder DSV continues to execute strongly, very much in-line with our investment thesis. After several months of speculation and previously failed bids, DSV announced earlier in the year that it had reached an agreement with its Swiss competitor Panalpina. While we are typically sceptical of large-scale M&A, in this instance we have confidence in the exceptionally strong management team at DSV based on their stellar track-record.

The fund's three largest detractors in Q2 were Deutsche Wohnen, Alphabet and UPM-Kymmene.

The German real estate company Deutsche Wohnen mainly derives its income from the Berlin residential rental market. However, a recent proposal from the City of Berlin calls for a five-year rental freeze. While the proposal may be unconstitutional and does not address the underlying problem of a severe supply shortage, the political interference nevertheless reduces the attractiveness of the investment case.

The US technology giant Alphabet, Google's parent company, retracted as Q1 results showed slowing ad growth. The Finnish pulp and paper company UPM-Kymmene traded lower as global pulp prices continue to fall.

Portfolio Activity

We initiated four new positions in the quarter, namely Atmos Energy, Bakkafrost, CME Group and Pernod Ricard.

Atmos Energy is a regulated US utility operating mainly in Texas with a 35-year history of dividend increases and a strong management team. The company has a large multi-year capex opportunity to replace ageing residential natural gas pipeline infrastructure with safer and more environmentally responsible material. When evaluated over our multi-year horizon, we think this value-enhancing opportunity is currently underappreciated.

Bakkafrost is a vertically integrated salmon farmer based on the Faroe Islands, a location that offers the company an inherent competitive advantage. We acknowledge that the salmon price may fluctuate significantly in the short term. Nonetheless, we argue that over the long term, the global megatrend of rising protein consumption coupled with superior biomass quality from the Faroe Islands and significant volume increases from Bakkafrost's ongoing capex program make for an attractive value proposition.

CME Group is an exchange operator that complements our current holdings by focusing on futures and options. The company has an enviable position in niche segments, a long history of innovation and an immense international growth opportunity. Our proprietary analysis indicates that these three characteristics are vastly more valuable than the market has priced in.

The French family-controlled distiller Pernod Ricard is the second largest wine and spirits producer in the world. With a footprint boasting over 40% of revenue from emerging markets, the company should benefit from strong secular organic growth for many years, especially considering that China and India each accounts for roughly 10% of group revenue. In addition, we believe that the market has overlooked the company's more judicious capital allocation and focus on brand equity and e-commerce.

As previously communicated, we exited the Dutch insurance company NN Group and the French IT services provider Capgemini during the quarter.

Outlook

We remain focused on bottom-up stock-picking and SKAGEN Global will continue to apply its unconstrained mandate to seek out undervalued companies with robust financials, strong competitive positions and management teams who are prudent capital allocators. The portfolio is attractively valued with a clear focus on long-term value-generating opportunities.

The fund selects undervalued companies from around the world, including emerging markets, with attractive risk-reward for long-term investors.

The objective is to provide the best possible risk adjusted return.

The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon.
